Additional Entry Information

In order for an entry to be eligible for a DGA Green Thumb Award it must be available for sale to the public. What catalog and/or website is currently selling or will be selling this product direct to the public?

---

Only products that will be introduced to the public after September 17, 2019 are eligible. Please list the date that this entry will be introduced to the gardening consumer:

---

Please note that the judges will not distinguish between organic and non-organic products. Organic is a type of growing method, and therefore is not considered a "new" product.

Product samples should not be sent with this entry form. Please check below if you would like to submit product samples directly to the DGA Green Thumb Awards judges:

_____ Yes, I would like to submit samples of this entry _____ No, I do not wish to submit samples

Do you have a specific trade industry outlet that you would like your winning entry to be sent to? If so, please provide the name of the publication/website/etc. and a contact for this.

Certification

I certify that the information contained in this entry form is accurate. I also understand that, if this entry is chosen as a winner, a company representative is expected to accept the DGA Green Thumb Award in person at the DGA Winter Conference held in Orlando, Florida, January 22-24, 2020.
